

100 EXPECTED TO ATTEND 25TH ASSEMBLY HERE

Dr. Herman Expects To Open Sessions
At Seminary On Wednesday.

MANY TEACHERS ARE ON PROGRAM

An enrollment of approximately 100 persons is expected for the twenty-fifth annual sessions of the Lutheran summer assembly, which opens Wednesday and continues until August 5 at the Lutheran theological seminary. The first session will be held at 6:30 o'clock, Wednesday evening. Whenever possible, sessions of the assembly will be held out-doors.

The Rev. Dr. S. Winfield Herman, of Harrisburg, is president of the assembly and will preside at the opening.

Four foreign missionaries are on the program. They are the Rev. R. H. Daube and Miss Corinne Menges, both stationed in South America; the Rev. C. Norman, of Japan, and the Rev. S. C. Burger, of India.

Good Teaching Staff

An exceptionally strong corps of instructors, both men and women, has been secured for the sessions, most of which will be held on the seminary campus under weather permits. The average enrollment of the assembly in recent years has been between 100 and 125.

The teaching staff follows:

The Rev. Dr. John Aberly, president of the seminary here; the Rev. Dr. Harvey D. Hoover, Gettysburg; the Rev. Dr. R. D. Heim, Greenville; the Rev. J. Harold Mumper, Westville, New Jersey; the Rev. Dr. Oscar Blackwelder, Baltimore; the Rev. Dr. J. B. Baker, York; the Rev. Chester Simonon, Harrisburg; the Rev. H. C. Michael, Johnstown; Miss Nona Diehl, Philadelphia; Miss Brenda Melhouse, Philadelphia; Mrs. H. C. Michael, Johnstown; Miss Sarah Bitner, Lancaster; Miss Jane Gilbert and Miss Edna Partridge, both of Philadelphia; Miss Edith Menkel, Baltimore, and the Rev. E. S. Falkenstein, New Cumberland.

Assembly Officers

Officers of the summer assembly besides the Rev. Dr. Herman, president, are the Rev. Dr. Aberly and the Rev. Dr. H. C. Allen, Gettysburg, vice presidents; the Rev. F. C. Sternat, Millersburg, secretary, and the Rev. E. S. Falkenstein, New Cumberland, treasurer.

Aid Asked for Woman In Russia

MISS STEFFY, 83, DIES SATURDAY

Aged Native Of County
Passes Away At Home
Of Brother.

Miss Margaret Steffy, 83-year-old native of Littlestown, who for years resided with her brother, George Steffy, at Littlestown, died Saturday night at 9:30 o'clock at the home of her brother, John Steffy, in Baltimore. Since the death of her brother, George, several months ago, Miss Steffy has been residing in Baltimore. Death was caused by old age and infirmities.

She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Martin Steffy, of Littlestown, and is survived by two brothers, Frank Steffy, of Philadelphia, and John Steffy, Baltimore. She was a life-long member of the St. Aloysius Catholic church at Littlestown.

The body is expected from Baltimore and funeral services will be held in the St. Aloysius church with high mass at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, the Rev. Father E. O'Flynn officiating. Interment in the St. Aloysius cemetery.

OPEN ANNUAL CAMP

Beginning a two weeks' outing where Rock and Marsh creeks join to form the Monocacy river, near Harney, twenty-five members of the Masonic camp of Gettysburg took up their abodes in tents today. The Masonic camp is the oldest camping group in Adams county, dating from shortly after the Civil war. Dan-campers.

C. OF C. MEETING

An adjourned meeting of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Hotel Gettysburg annex. A full turnout of members is urged.

To the Editor of The Times:

Santa Monica, Calif., July 27. A fellow was just up here telling me that one of the causes of the extreme heat was that the Japanese gulf stream was in closer to us this year and that the water was much warmer hence warming the land. Even the ocean is against us. Did you ever see as many cockeyed things could happen to one country all at once?

Ex-President Calles has declared that you can use silver to pay your debts instead of gold. He is trying to get silver back where it belongs. That's fine. Mexico has got the silver but what about us? We will have to start paying off with potatoes and watermelons.

TOURISTS HERE DECREASE FOR SECOND QUARTER

Blame Depression For Decline In Total Number Of Visitors.

GUIDES ESCORT 32,392 PARTIES

The economic depression throughout the United States continues to make itself felt in the number of tourists who are visiting Gettysburg this season. A sharp reduction in the number of tourists who visited the far-famed battlefield here in 1930 over 1929 was shown in the annual report of guides, activities as compiled at the office of Col. E. E. Davis, superintendent of the national park, and this year's total is expected to fall under the 1930 figures.

In the second quarter of this year, ended June 30, it is estimated that 33,810 fewer tourists, with and without guides, toured the battlefield than in the same three-month period last year, according to the quarterly report made public today by Colonel Davis.

During April, May and June this year, the 92 guides, who were working, reported that they escorted 32,392 tourists over the battlefield, as compared with 39,154 in the same quarter last year, a reduction of 6,762.

On the basis that only one tourist in every five tours the battlefield with a guide, the national park officials have estimated that 129,568 persons visited the field without guides during the three months ended June 30, as compared with 156,616 in the same period a year ago.

COMPLETE PIPE LINE TO OHIO

Gasoline Now Flowing
Through Main Passing Across County.

The gasoline pipeline constructed by the Sun oil company through this county last summer has been completed to Cleveland, Ohio, and gasoline and other oil products are being delivered through the line direct to Cleveland and other more easterly points from the company's refineries in Marcus Hook.

No great fanfare accompanied the formal opening of the line and, just as construction work was pushed to completion quietly, in the same manner the new line was placed in operation.

The company's pipe line program had its inception as far back as 1928, when officials first gave serious thought to transportation of gasoline by that means. As a result of surveys which consumed the greater part of 1929, plans were formulated for laying an eight-inch line from Marcus Hook, to Icedale, near Downingtown.

Two six-inch main trunk lines branch off at this point, one being the completed Cleveland spur, the other being a line into Syracuse, New York, by way of Binghamton, now completed to Scranton.

The lines have a capacity rated at 25,000 barrels daily. The system is approximately 700 miles in length.

Into Back Yard
Operation of the Pennsylvania-Ohio line brings the Ohio river valley market virtually into the "backyard" of the Sun refinery at Marcus Hook. It will mean a much wider scope for the company as well as enabling integration of marketing operations in the company's territories.

Sun oil officials now contemplate expansion of the concern's bulk terminal at Van Port, near Pittsburgh. (Continued on Page Two)

Mrs. Kimple Buried From Local Church

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Anastasia Kimple, wife of John Kimple, who died at her home on Chambersburg street last Thursday evening, were held from St. Francis Xavier Catholic church here this morning at 9 o'clock. A solemn requiem mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Mark E. Stock, assisted by the Rev. Father Lewis Yeager, Lancaster, a nephew of the deceased, and the Rev. Father F. C. Noel, Chambersburg.

The committal service at St. Ignatius Catholic cemetery, Buchanan Valley, was in charge of the Rev. Father Yeager.

Palbearers were George F. Eberhart, Penrose Myers, P. C. Stock, James M. Caldwell, J. Edward Oyler and George Hemler.

To Quit Post

Henry P. Fletcher will retire September 16 from his post as chairman of the tariff commission.

40 LONE SCOUTS AT ANNIVERSARY

County Group Observes End Of First Year Of Organization.

Forty scouts and scout leaders attending the first anniversary meeting of the Adams county Lone Scout tribe held Saturday night at Loma Vista, the home of O. H. Benson, Guernsey. Mr. Benson is a counselor in Lone Scout work.

At the meeting officers for the coming year were elected, the tribe committee installed, patrols organized and patrol leaders appointed.

The officers for the coming year are: Chief, Clyde Sowers; scribe, Ralph Tyson; scribe, Frederic Griest; wampum bearer, Paul Tyson; songleader, William Trostle; cheerleader, Guy Beamer.

The tribe committeemen are: chairman, Frederic Griest; Doctor Frost, and Paul Osborne. The Rev. H. W. Sternat and Clare Dull are the present assistant scoutmasters. Others will be added in the near future. Frederic Tyson remained scoutmaster.

The patrol leaders are: John Bringham, Biglerville; Stewart Heller, Aspers; Charles Lott, Fairfield, and Raymond Burtner, Idaville. There is an assistant scoutmaster for every patrol. In the future there will be community patrol meetings every two weeks and tribe meetings four times a year, owing to the large size of the tribe.

Now 45 Members
At the meeting 12 new members were initiated into the tribe, making the total membership 45. Other ranks reported at the meeting are: Second class scouts, Stewart Heller, Guy Beamer and Frederic Griest; first class, Clyde Sowers; bronze contributing medal, Charles Lott.

The last mentioned award is an award for amateur journalism given on a basis of five points for every 100 words accepted and published in scout papers and cooperating publications. It has taken Lott over one year to attain the award. He is now trying for the silver award which is presented for three hundred more points. The bronze takes the same amount.

Final plans were laid for the projected world's fair trip, and a committee was appointed, under the leadership of Clyde Sowers. The program will be under way in a few weeks. Three goals were set for the tribe: One, 100 members in the tribe until December 31; two, the tribe contribute 100 bushels of black walnuts, and three, work for a success of the world's fair trip.

A tribe-song was also introduced. The song was written by M. V. Low-erre, Jr., assistant, national director of rural scouting, and dedicated to the tribe, in remembrance of the Region III Rally, which was sponsored by them on July 4 and 5. A tribe band under the leadership of William Stoops was also planned and practices will soon begin. The band will have about 12 pieces. The meeting was adjourned at 10:00.

Prominent scout officials who were in attendance were: O. H. Benson, national director of rural scouting; Thomas McAully, field executive of the Adams-York area council, in charge of the Adams county section.

Wheaton College Five To Give Concert Here

A concert of vocal and instrumental music will be given by the Wheaton college quintet of Wheaton, Illinois, at the Gettysburg Presbyterian church at 8 o'clock this evening. The quintet has appeared previously in Adams county, and comes highly recommended. No admission will be charged, but a silver offering will be lifted.

Gets Offer Of Marriage After Namesake Received Big Bequest

Another Letter Offers Philadelphia Apartment House For Down Payment Of $25,000; Many Widows Among Those Seeking Spry Man As Husband.

The fact that his surname is Martin brought many offers of marriage to William F. Martin, of York.

And a Philadelphia real estate operator also offered to sell him a 71-room apartment house on a down payment of $25,000, stating that he was willing to carry the balance of the purchase price on a mortgage. The price was not given.

This real estate operator stated that all the apartments were rented, but one.

Some days ago newspapers carried the story of William F. Martin, Spry, becoming heir of $25,000 and a house worth $9,000.

This bequest was made by a Norristown woman whom the York countian had assisted when she fell and broke a leg.

With the publication of the story, the letters began arriving for William F. Martin, York. They came from Indianapolis, St. Louis, DuBois, Cherokee, Kansas; Waco, Texas; Everett, Massachusetts, and other places.

Martin himself didn't know what it was all about, but after perusing the letters he thought of the fortunate Martin of Spry who inherited $25,000 and a house worth $9,000, and the North York Martin returned the mail to the postman.

The letters arriving in York are simply addressed to William F. Martin, York, Pa., the legacy story having borne a York, Pa., date line.

In letters received thus far Martin has had eighteen offers of marriage. Many of the prospective brides had various appeals. One had $2,000 worth of furniture in storage. Another is a widow with three children.

One woman held out as a charm that she "is a one-man woman, and not a woman of the world."

One invited him to come to Everett, Massachusetts, on an extended vacation.

Another from Rochester, New York, stated that if he was interested she would be willing to visit York on her vacation.

One from a point in Kansas sent along her photograph.

The letters came from women in all walks in life—school teachers, stenographers, domestics, widows and so on.

One said she is a grandmother, living in New Jersey, and that she has a child two years old. She wrote a lengthy letter and said "it has always been my desire to live with one, like I believe you to be, a common man who has inherited a vast fortune."

NO ACCIDENTS OVER WEEK-END RUSH WORK ON CENTER SQUARE

Three Arrests Made For Traffic Violations
On Sunday.

Although automobile traffic on Adams county highways was unusually heavy over the week-end, according to state highway motor patrolmen, no accidents were reported to the local sub-station.

The officers, however, made three arrests for motor code violations.

T. Woodrow Musselman, of Easton, was arrested at Greenmount Sunday evening, for the improper use of an automobile dealer's license plates. According to the officer, Musselman, who is not an automobile dealer, used the dealer's plates on a pleasure trip to Washington, D. C., Sunday. An information against him was laid before Justice of the Peace John C. Shearer.

James W. Fissel, Gettysburg R. 3, was arrested Sunday, for passing another automobile at a railroad crossing, three miles west of New Oxford. An information against Fissel will be laid before Justice of the Peace W. D. Myers, New Oxford. For passing another automobile at excessive speed, according to the motor patrolman, C. W. Bender, York, was arrested on the Lincoln highway, two miles east of Abbottstown, Sunday. Justice of the Peace L. D. Sell, Hanover, will be given the information against Bender.

Walnut Bottom Barn Burns On Sunday

Fire of undetermined origin early Sunday destroyed the large barn on the farm of Joseph McBeth at Walnut Bottom, six miles east of Shippenburg. The loss is estimated at $5,000 and is partially covered by insurance.

The livestock in the barn was all saved by McBeth and members of his family who discovered the fire about 1 o'clock. The rural fire fighting apparatus of the Cumberland Valley Hose company of Shippenburg was rushed to the scene of the blaze and saved adjoining buildings.

The cause of the fire is a mystery since there was no storm at the time and there were no crops in the barn which might have caused spontaneous combustion.

McBeth bought the farm three years ago when he moved to this state from Iowa.

TOUR BATTLEFIELD

Fifteen officers of the first regiment, Maryland national guards, encamped at Camp Ritchie at Cascade, Maryland, under command of Major Thomas G. McNicholas, toured the Gettysburg battlefield this morning. The same officers will again visit the field on Tuesday and Wednesday. Charles Bodley is the guide for the visiting officers.

WEATHER REPORT

Fair and somewhat warmer tonight. Tuesday partly cloudy. Probably scattered thunder showers in the afternoon. Slightly warmer in the south portion Tuesday.

Complete Laying Of Concrete To Be Paved By Contractor.

Work on the center square improvements is moving rapidly, laying of the concrete foundation for the macadam street to be constructed around the reduced circular grass plot having been completed late Saturday afternoon.

Only two working days were required to complete the pouring of concrete strip around the circle. The strip is approximately 10 feet wide, although the width varies at places because the walk around the former grass plot which it replaces was not circular.

The concrete strip will be allowed to stand for two weeks before the macadam surface is poured. In the meantime, John S. Teeter, Taneytown contractor, who has the contract for the job, will construct the curb which is to encompass the reduced grass plot, and around the eight corners of the four streets which converge in center square.

Excavation for the improvements was begun on Wednesday, July 15, but only six full working days have elapsed since the work was begun. The job is to be completed in 20 working days.

A new grade for the circular plot, the diameter of which is 78 feet, will be established in accordance with the plans of the state highway department and approved by council. The curb around the plot will be of uniform height. Around the old circle, the curb varied in height at one place being two steps high and at another place only one step high.

ARREST YOUTH AFTER QUARREL

Bendersville Resident Alleges
Suggs Made Threats With Knife.

Loving Suggs, 22, of Bendersville, was arrested this morning on the farm of Lawrence Wright, near Bendersville, on two charges of surety of the peace.

Bruce Kuhn and George Fanecker, both of Bendersville, are the prosecutors, alleging that Suggs threatened them with a knife Sunday evening. Suggs was under the influence of liquor at the time, according to Corporal Holchowst and Constable George Auginbaugh.

The informations were laid before Justice of the Peace D. P. Delap, Bendersville.

Suggs was committed to the Adams county jail in default of bail.

Suggs, who is married, came to Adams county from Anderson, Alabama, in search of work six months ago. For some time he has been working on the Wright farm, near Bendersville.

HOSPITAL REPORT

GIRL KNOWN IN GETTYSBURG IS CRASH VICTIM

Pauline Kast, Capital City Girl, Related To Families In County.

ON TOUR ACROSS BALKAN STATES

Miss Pauline Kast, 30, of Harrisburg, who was killed in an airplane crash near Kurudevo, Bulgaria, last Friday, was a cousin of Mrs. H. B. Bender and Miss Hattie Johns, of Gettysburg, it was learned today. Miss Kast was well known here and frequently visited her local relatives.

The deaths of Miss Kast and of another American, Rutgers Barclay, 20, of New York, were officially reported Sunday by the Sofia agency of Cinda, French air transport line which owned the wrecked plane.

The plane burst into flames in the air, fell and exploded in the Balkan forests, according to news dispatches.

Miss Kast, an assistant in the educational department of the Cleveland museum of art, was on a three months' study tour of Turkey, Greece and Egypt when the crash occurred. She was on leave of absence from the museum, and was expected to return to this country on August 24.

Born in Mechanicsburg

Miss Kast was born in Mechanicsburg, a cousin of Miss Ida Kast, prominent Cumberland county attorney of that place. She was well known in Mechanicsburg, having spent much of her childhood there at the home of her grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Theodore T. Kast, of West Main street. Miss Kast's ancestors were among the early settlers of the town.

When Pauline was four years old, her parents moved to Harrisburg, where the girl attended the public schools and was graduated from high school.

She then attended Mt. Holyoke college, studied for two years at the Pennsylvania school of industrial arts, Philadelphia, and taught for three years at Briarcliffe Manor in New York before becoming an attaché of the Cleveland museum two years ago.

Associated Press dispatches from Cleveland said she taught modeling and conducted story hours there since August, 1929.

Flew From Istanbul

Miss Kast is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Kast, 2205 Bellevue road, Harrisburg. Her father is a member of the architect firm of Kast and Kelker.

The American consul at Sofia was arranging yesterday for the bodies of the two American victims of the plane crash to lie in state at Burgas, Bulgaria, where they were to be transported to await instructions from relatives.

The ship that carried Miss Kast to her death left Istanbul at 4:30 p. m. Friday, and should have landed in Bucharest three hours later. But at 7:15 o'clock it was struggling against a strong wind and thick clouds in the Balkans.

Peasants working in the fields said they saw the plane flying low before it fell. Flames suddenly burst from the machine, they said, and the ship fell to the ground and exploded.

Reports from Sofia said the pilot must have lost his way, as the usual route of Istanbul-Bucharest airliners is along the coast of the Black Sea.

The pilot and co-pilot and all passengers are believed to have died before the plane struck the earth.

An inquiry into the crash has been begun by Bulgarian authorities and by directors of the French air line.

Washington, July 27 (AP)—Orders were issued today by the state department for shipment to Harrisburg of Pauline Kast, one of two Americans killed in an airplane crash in Bulgaria, Friday. The American consul at Sofia was instructed to make the necessary arrangements.

STOCK REPORT

New York, July 27 (AP)—The new week opened in Wall street with caution still the dominant note. The stock market continued to drift listlessly. Rails and some of the specialties were rather heavy. In the main, leading industrial held up well.

Graf Zeppelin Is Above Arctic Circle

Friedrichshafen, July 27 (AP)—Last word from the dirigible Graf Zeppelin put her well above the Arctic circle. A wireless report from the ship was received here by the Zeppelin works. The report told that the dirigible was well on her way to Franz Josef land where Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, expected to make contact today with the Russian Malgim.

The airship left Leningrad at 11 a. m. yesterday and her schedule called for about six days in the Arctic during which the party of scientists aboard will gather data about wind and weather.

GUARDSMEN RETURN

After two weeks' active field training at Camp Kemp, Mt. Gretna, the 106th motor repair section, 28th division train, Pennsylvania national guards, under command of First Lieutenant Ralph Deatrick, returned to Gettysburg on Saturday.

During the two weeks' training, there were no casualties, and everyone of the guardsmen returned home "feeling fine." The return trip was made by truck and automobile.

Complete Pipe

In connection with operations of the new line, Van Port is to be the location of an extensive river distributing system by means of barges on the Ohio river.

It is planned to erect or acquire additional storage, river loading facilities, at that point and to place an important fleet of river tankers in operation. At this time Sun oil has two 80,000-barrel storage tanks at Van Port.

The building of the pipe lines has progressed with extraordinary celerity. Constructed over rough and sometimes well-nigh impassable terrain, criss-crossed with streams, roadways and railroads, the work which actually began in July of last year is now drawing to conclusion.

Some idea of the complexities of the job may be gained from the fact that the work of the right of way force alone included the obtaining of approximately 1058 road, 161 railroad, 33 electric car line, 37 river and 671 stream permits, a total of 1990,

Neely Moves To Clemson College

Clemson College, S. C. (AP)—Jess Neely has moved over from Alabama and is busy putting things in shape for his first football season at Clemson.

Neely, who assisted Wallace Wade in putting out great football teams at Tusculooosa for several years, is to be head coach here.

He will have some good material in Capt. Red Fordham at center, eugen Seigel, a guard, and "Footsie" Davis, a hefty tackle. There are other veterans in the line.

The backfield is promising, but Coach Neely is looking for a pair of ends to replace Jones and Woodruff, lost by graduation.

The Clemson Tigers won the Palmetto state championship for the second consecutive year last season.

BURN CHURCHES IN MEXICAN CITY

Youth Who Attempts To Assassinate Governor Is In Hospital.

Jalapa, Mex., July 27 (AP)—A young man who attempted to assassinate Governor Adalberto Tejeda was in a hospital Sunday and many mob leaders were in jail after a night of rioting in this state capital in which four of the principal churches were damaged by fire.

In the city of Vera Cruz, two priests, Father Dario Acosta, 22, and Father Alberto Landa, 23, were killed in a raid on the Asuncion church while imparting religious instruction to a congregation of children Saturday evening.

Immediately after he had been wounded by a shot in one ear, Governor Tejeda declared from a balcony of the government palace here that "despite this campaign of terrorism, I will carry out my plan."

After the attack on the governor, a mob formed and obtaining gasoline at automobile filling stations, advanced against the churches. Pouring gasoline on the walls, they set fire to the buildings.

The cathedral and the churches of Calvario, Beaterio and San Jose were damaged before the fires were extinguished by police and troops. Several persons were injured when a wall of the San Jose church collapsed.

Independents Win Two More Games

The Gettysburg Independents added two more games to their string of victories over the week-end defeating Fairfield, 14-4 Saturday afternoon and the Carlisle army post 12-5 Sunday afternoon. The first game was never in doubt, while in the contest at Carlisle, a pitching duel between Maust, for the Independents and Leffer, for Carlisle held the game in the balance until the seventh inning.

The absence of several of the regular stars from the Fairfield team considerably weakened the county nine and the Independents had no trouble in winning. A much different story is promised by Fairfield for Wednesday when the two teams meet again and the west end borough expects to have its regular line-up back at work.

The victory over Carlisle was the third for Maust this season against the army outfit. He shared honors with Kitzmiller and Oshelwitz with the heavy hitters for the locals. Palmer pitched for the Independents Saturday while Hinkle and Keller carried off hitting honors. "Guy Bream, manager of the team, is looking for additional teams to put on his schedule, he announced today. Two games will be played this week, one at Arendtsville Tuesday night and another at Fairfield Wednesday.

ROB ROADHOUSE

Alliquippa, Pa., July 27 (AP)—Nearly two score guests in the Hill-top tea room were held up by four bandits late last night. Money and jewelry were taken. Men and women were driven into separate rooms. The men were compelled to remove their trousers, one of the bandits telling them "that's just so you won't be in a hurry to follow us."

GETS RECORD

Honolulu, July 27 (AP)—Charles Zimny, legless professional swimmer, completed 100 hours of continuous swimming and claimed a 86 hours endurance swimming world's record. The previous mark was held by Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston. Zimny said his ambition was to swim the English channel both ways without stopping.

Silence Of Indians Hinders Investigation Into Coed's Death

White River, Ariz., July 27 (AP)—Officers investigating the death of Henrietta Schmerler, 23-year-old Columbia university anthropology student, stood non-plussed Sunday before the taciturnity of seven Indians under arrest in the case.

Accepting their imprisonment stoically, the Indians are steadfastly silent, refusing also to comment on the detention of W. R. Warner, a white man.

Warner was arrested when his name was found in a letter written by Miss Schmerler and when an Indian deaf mute declared in the sign language that he saw Warner placing the girl, dead or unconscious, in his automobile near Fort Apache.

PENAL SYSTEM CALLED FAILURE

Wickersham Commission In Report Finds Many Faults With Institutions.

Washington, July 27 (AP)—The American penal system was adjudged a flat failure Sunday by the Wickersham commission.

Reporting directly to President Hoover, the commission scored the use of brutal disciplinary measures and asserted conditions in many of the 3000 institutions of the system were "almost incredible."

It told of men who, for offenses as slight as talking or laughing, were shackled to doors for twelve hours a day, tied down under a stream of cold water, whipped, placed in straight jackets, confined in wire cages so small they could not move, or kept in complete darkness for days on end on a ration of four ounces of bread every twenty-four hours.

Prisons Failures

"The prison has failed as a disciplinary institution," the report said. "The riots, the fire, the use of cruel and brutal measures of punishment, the persistent recurrence of murder within the prison, the presence of narcotics, the frequent outbreaks of hate and bitterness, are sufficient evidence."

"The prison has failed as an education institution. No one claims that the men who are released are better equipped to accept an honest role in the world than they were before commitment."

Fails As Business Enterprise
"The prison has failed as a business enterprise. With few exceptions our prison system is a costly and dependent institution. We spend on the average $350 each year for the maintenance of each individual prisoner in our penal institutions."

The commission asserted it was convinced "a new type of penal institution must be developed." It outlined a plan of its own, under which only a few prisoners would be kept in heavily barred and guarded buildings.

CHANGE RULES ON PARCEL POST

County Postmasters Given New Instructions On Weight And Size.

Postmasters of Adams county have received word from the postal department in Washington announcing increased limits of weight and size for fourth-class or parcel post mail. The new regulations will be effective on Saturday, August 1.

Mail matter of the fourth class shall weigh in excess of 8 ounces, shall not exceed 70 pounds in weight nor greater in size than 100 inches in length and girth combined. Under this plan the limit of weight for the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth postal zones is increased from 50 to 70 pounds, thus making the weight limit uniform in all zones. The limit of size of parcels is increased from 84 inches to 100 inches in length and girth combined.

The minimum charge on a parcel measuring more than 84 inches but not more than 100 in length and girth combined is the same as the appropriate zone charge for a 10-pound parcel. That is, parcels measuring more than 84 inches in length and girth combined but weighing less than 10 pounds will be subject to postage in the amount chargeable for the zone to which the particular parcel may be addressed. On parcels weighing 10 pounds or more, which measure more than 84 inches but not more than 100 inches in length and girth combined, the regular zone pound rates apply.

STARTS ON FLIGHT

Hendon, July 27 (AP)—Amy Johnson, Great Britain's foremost woman flier, took off today on a flight to Tokyo by way of Moscow and Siberia in a plane similar to that in which she flew to Australia last year. She was accompanied by J. Humphreys. Last winter when she attempted the same flight she was forced down in Poland and had to give up.

Death List In Fire

Reaches 39 Sunday

Pittsburgh, July 27 (AP)—A fight began Sunday to prevent pneumonia from taking the lives of many of those rescued from fire that destroyed the Home for the Aged of the Little Sisters of the Poor here Friday night and early Saturday.

The number of lives lost in the blaze meanwhile mounted to thirty-nine over the week-end.

News From Neighboring Counties

WAIVES HEARING ON LIQUOR CHARGES

York—Eugene McManus, York R. D. 1, whose place along the Taxville road was raided last Saturday night by Deputy Sheriff Earl R. Jacoby on a charge of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor, waived a hearing Friday evening before Justice of the Peace Albert H. Shettel, North York. He posted bond in the amount of $500 for his appearance in court. Attorney Michael S. Niles represented McManus. The raid is reported to have yielded a large quantity of home brew.

BARN BURNS DURING HEAVY MARYLAND STORM

Unionville, Md.—Struck by lightning during a heavy hailstorm in the Unionville section of the county, the large bank barn of Hollis Koonz, one mile from Unionville, was totally destroyed by fire, together with a large part of its contents, including this year's wheat crop, feed, a young calf and a large wagon. The loss could not be estimated, but was expected to exceed $5,000.

The bolt of lightning, the only one residents of the vicinity saw during the entire storm, struck the barn about 4 o'clock while Herman Koonz, 21, son of the owner, was standing in the building. He was stunned for a minute by the flash but recovered and realized that the barn was afire. With his father and an employee, William Holtzopfe, he assisted in removing a large amount of the machinery stored there and also leading eight horses and one calf to safety. Another calf, stunned by the lightning, was burned.

HITCH-HIKER IS HURT CLIMBING ON TRUCK

Chambersburg—Injured when he fell while trying to hop onto a west-bound motor truck, Paul J. Hurley, 22, of Mt. Vernon, New York, blamed the accident on the truck driver, who, he said, failed to stop to let him make a safe boarding of the truck.

Hurley was admitted to the Chambersburg hospital suffering from cuts on the head and chest.

The accident happened a mile west of town on the Lincoln highway. Hurley, who said he was hitch-hiking from New York to Pittsburgh, was accompanied by a 14-year-old brother, about whom he professed to know nothing.

12-YEAR-OLD BOY LOSES HIS RIGHT HAND

Frederick—William L. Gorsuch, 12-year-old son of Mrs. Ethel Gorsuch, Wilmington, Delaware, had his left hand severed near the wrist when he stuck it into a worm-conveyor in a feed mixing machine at the Devillies brothers feed house, New Windsor, where he was at play. After receiving medical attention, the boy was taken to the Frederick hospital where the hand was amputated at the wrist.

The youth, together with his mother, were visiting at the home of Mrs. Gorsuch's brother, Carroll Lantz, New Windsor.

Union Head Is Slain In Chicago

Chicago, July 27 (AP)—Ely H. Orr, secretary-treasurer of the News-paper Delivery Drivers, Chauffeurs and Helpers' union, was assassinated shortly after he left the plant of the Herald and Examiner early Sunday.

Two men in a speeding automobile poured a fusillade of shotgun slugs into Orr as he sat in his machine at a street intersection awaiting the go signal from a stop light.

A newsboy, Emil Woznicki, only witness to the shooting, said the slayers laughed as they drove away. Orr recently supplanted "West Side" Jack Barry, an ex-convict, as secretary of the union and attaches of the state's attorney's office immediately ordered a search for Barry. An arrest order also was issued for Anthony Kissane, gunman.

LEAPS IN RIVER

Pittsburgh, July 27 (AP)—Having bid a friend goodbye as they talked on the Seventh avenue bridge here, Stephen Merley leaped over the bridge rails and drowned in the Allegheny river today.

County News Briefs
Many persons from Adams county towns are planning to attend the annual tri-state reunion of the Presbyterian church at Pen Mar park in the South mountains next Thursday. It will be the 57th held at the resort. The Rev. C. Waldo Cherry, pastor of the Pine Street Presbyterian church at Harrisburg, will be the principal speaker and his subject will be "Our Presbyterian Heritage." S. Gray Bigham is the representative from the Gettysburg Presbyterian church.
A benefit baseball game was held at Carlisle Friday night for Clyde Kennedy, York Springs school teacher, who broke his leg last week playing at first base for the York Springs team. The receipts of the game were $40, although York Springs lost the game 11-1.
Shoes, leather and rubber goods were the largest items in Hanover's industrial production of $17,172,000 for 1930. According to the secretary of internal affairs report, the shoe and leather production in the nearby town had a value of $5,979,900 in the year.

AMUSEMENTS
At The Majestic
Laughter and tears, the chief requisites of any drama, are said to be perfectly blended in the new Fox production, "Daddy Long Legs," which plays today and Tuesday at the Majestic theatre, with Janet Gaynor and Warner Baxter in the principal roles.
Critics who have seen the photoplay report that it gives these two popular favorites unlimited opportunities for the display of their charm and talents, and that it offers the season's treat to Gaynor and Baxter fans.
Janet Gaynor is seen as a little slaving orphan, who mothers the small tots in the John Grier home. Through an unexpected stroke of fate she wins the admiration and friendship of Baxter, who plays the title role, and he without revealing his identity to her adopts her and sends her to college. From that point on the romance develops rapidly until it reaches the climax, a most unexpected one for Miss Gaynor.
BUS RUNS DOWN BOY
Philadelphia, July 27 (AP)—An Allentown bus ran up on the pavement in Broad street here today to avoid collision with an automobile and ran down a 12-year-old boy. The child, Charles Undercopper, was taken to a hospital with a fractured skull. Five passengers were shaken up but escaped injury.
KILLED IN ACCIDENT
Newcastle, July 27 (AP)—George Lanko, 25, was instantly killed today when his automobile collided with another driven by Virgil Seck, 26, of Butler.

MOON OF DELIGHT

by Margaret Bell Houston

SYNOPSIS: Treated kindly by Jason Divitt and his wife, Molly, Juanita Basara sells cigarettes to his gambling patrons. Fearing his threat to expose her as an Argentine runaway, she dares not attempt escape openly. Gabreau and his mother, Cochita, are friendly, the former protecting Juanita from the evil Umberto, a fellow employee. Adrian Fouché, intrigued by Juanita's Turkish costume, which conceals her identity, gets Eric Ledbetter to try to lift her veil. The attempt fails as Juanita, observing Señor Basara of Mexico in the group which includes Mrs. Belaise and her grandson, Kirk Stanard, flees to her room in alarm. When Mrs. Belaise leaves she does not know Divitt has slyly secured her costly necklace. Next day he tells Juanita she is to return it.

Chapter 10

MYSTERIOUS YSABEL
Juanita mastered the impulse to tell Divitt that she was not his servant to beset on any of his errands, mastered the suspicion that this was a trap—as last night's encounter might also have been a trap. The post for Vera Cruz—had Basara really taken it? Would he perhaps be at the Stanard home when she returned the necklace? She could see no motive for treachery on Divitt's part. Neither could she see any motive for sending her on this errand of liberty, as he called it.

As for dealing honorably, there was no other way. What would she do with freedom if she had it? Where would she go? Certainly not to the place she had called home. She had no longer the desire even to mail the letter she had begun.

What could that letter have done but compromise the one who received it? No, Divitt might send her anywhere with safety. She asked only that she should not send her into a trap. Could it be that some sense of pity had come to him?

"Try me, Señor," she said. "I shall, of course, wear my veil."
"That's just what you want," Divitt answered. "Did you think we were going to send you out in your Fatima regalia? No, Señorita, you'll wear what any lady would wear. But no veils."

"I may go at night?"
"You will go at four this afternoon. But you will travel in a closed car and you may pull down the shades if you like. Does it never occur to you, Señorita, that New Orleans is a long way from the Argentine? And on this occasion you will not be Juanita Basara, as you have said to me you are, but let us say—Señorita Ysabel Flores of Spain—Seville, to be exact, stopping at the Hotel Tíjon. I have had some cards engraved for you."

Divitt regarded Juanita thoughtfully.
"It happens, Señorita Flores, that as you were turning into Royal street last night—or very early this morning—you saw something shining on the sidewalk, and, bidding your chauffeur pick it up, discovered that it was a necklace of value. This morning, looking in the paper for some clue to its ownership, you found this advertisement. You would not entrust it to any other hands for delivery. The reward? Surely they are not speaking of rewards to Señorita Flores of Seville!"

"It is deception," said Juanita in a low voice.
Divitt smiled now. "I presume the Fatima costume is not," he remarked. "Nor the name you pass under here. Never mind, Señorita, as if she might protest. 'What you desire is a veil. The scarf is a veil, and the name Basara, perhaps.'"

"So also the name Ysabel Flores, and her personality, which you are at liberty to make as delightful as you please. There are few diversions that I can give you, my social position in New Orleans not furnishing the ideal background. Yet diversions and contact, of the type to which you are obviously accustomed, are what you must have—or our veiled lady will cease to lure."

"One thing, however, it will be well for you to remember, and that is that your arrest will not occur as the result of some casual discovery. It will come only should the police be tipped off as to the rest of us, or should I turn you over to the authorities. This errand of trust is simple. There is no danger in it—unless you care to inject some."

It was not necessary to tell him that she would go. Divitt had already turned to his desk.

Molly came at three, bringing some dresses from which Juanita might choose. Molly prattled bravely, holding the dresses up for Juanita's inspection.

"This chestnut crepe with the embroidery on the pockets. And this black satin with the white bertha—that's rich, honey. Or this chiffon velvet—a little dressy, wouldn't you say, for just a call? And here's a black georgette coat that will go with anything—That's Gabreau with the hats. Put them down, Gabreau, and shut the door."

Juanita tried on the dresses, selecting the black satin Molly hung the other dresses in the armoire.

"We'll keep them," she explained. "Once you get in the best houses—Here! I'd almost forgotten the pearls for your neck. And a bit of lipstick—just a bit. Now you're ready. A grand lady going for a call. Wait! We mustn't forget your 'raison d'être.' That's French for 'reason you're there.'" And Molly drew the necklace from her blouse, dropping it into a little silk purse. "You cards are in there too," she added. "All right, honey. All set?"

Juanita followed her down the stairs and to the little gate that opened on the patio of the Hotel Tíjon waiting there while Molly went to her room and returned with the key. The shady Tíjon patio was set with tables around which groups of girls in bright dresses chatted under the gay umbrella awnings.

Molly and Juanita crossed the worn flagstones to the verandah, entering a back hallway, and thence to the weathered marble lobby of the Tíjon. Divitt came toward them, and Molly disappeared.

"Good afternoon, Señorita," Divitt spoke obsequiously and audibly. "Your car is here." And he bowed Juanita out the door to the long blue limousine shining at the curb. The Tíjon door man opened the door. Divitt bowed again, spoke to the liveried chauffeur, and Juanita was moving through a lane of little shops and into Canal street. Here were great stores, traffic of surface cars and automobiles, pedestrians in droves. Bright bunting hung below the windows. The lamp posts were varnished with flowers. Juanita did not know it, but this was the eve of Mardi Gras when New Orleans puts on her trinkets for the stranger.

Juanita relaxed among the cushions. Here in the soft sunlight amid the unheeding crowds, she lost the last doubt regarding her errand. The necklace had been lost. Divitt was permitting her to return it. Perhaps she need tell no tale regarding her own finding of the necklace. Perhaps no questions would be asked.

The car had entered a wide street bordered with tall palm trees and houses set in flowered lawns. Here at her left was a park and great oaks hung with moss.

They entered the gateway of a columned house, passed up a drive between magnolia trees, stopped in the shelter of a porte cochere. The chauffeur alighted, touched the bell. Then he turned and looked at Juanita.

It was Umberto. Umberto looking pale and somewhat haggard. Again doubt and fear. To what place had Umberto brought her? The door had opened, and an old negro in a white coat spoke with Umberto. Mrs. Belaise was ill, he said. Mr. Stanard was at home. The dark benign old face, the glimpse of pleasant interior, reassured Juanita.

Umberto opened the door of the limousine and Juanita stepped out, following the old negro through a dim hall and into a great room, pale blue and rose color, with gilt framed mirrors reaching to the floor. There were prism-hung chandeliers and deep rugs and a faint pervading fragrance.

The old butler was holding out a silver tray. Juanita took out one of the cards. "Be seated, Miss," he said.

But Juanita stood before the white marble mantel, looking up at the portrait of a woman in the dress of the early 'eighties, her arm encircling a little girl.

Kirk had been at home since noon. Mrs. Belaise, propped in bed, had insisted on answering all telephone calls herself. Every one, it seemed, had read the advertisement, and knowing with what passion Nelly loved her jewels, people had called or sent flowers. And Nelly grew more distracted as the day wore on.

"It like somebody done died," Pompey had said after he had apprised Kirk and Kirk had come home.

And now Kirk upstairs studied the card Pompey had brought. "Señorita Ysabel Flores"—a new name to him. Some one, of course, his grandmother knew. Yet he would not submit the card to her. (Copyright, Dodd, Mead & Co.)

Compelling eyes. . . . Juanita reads a message in them Monday even as her smile dashes Kirk's haunting illusion.

No purer cigarette can be made!

Worth every cent and every thought it costs—PURITY.

Everything that goes into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes MUST be pure. No "maybe's" will pass muster here. Tobacco—the mildest, ripest and purest money can buy. Paper—the purest made.

And our factories? The last word in machine equipment, light and sanitation. Models of cleanliness. The air throughout is changed every 4½ minutes.

No purer, milder, better-tasting cigarette than Chesterfield can be made. We challenge the world to produce a better smoke!

An Evening Thought

Poverty is uncomfortable, but nine times out of ten the best thing that can happen to a young man is to be tossed overboard and compelled to sink or swim for himself.

In all my acquaintances I never knew a man to be drowned who was worth the saving.

—James A. Garfield.

Considerable damage has been done by the late rains to the western division of the Pennsylvania canal, a large portion of the great dam at Leeburg has been swept off, and it is feared that the line cannot be put in order before the close of the present season. Lancaster Journal.

Howbeit when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth: for he shall not speak of himself; but whatsoever he shall hear, that shall he speak: and he will shew you things to come.

He shall glorify me: for he shall receive of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

All things that the Father hath are mine: therefore said I, that he shall take of mine, and shall shew it unto you.

A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me, because I go to my Father.

Then said some of the disciples among themselves, What is this that he saith unto us, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me: and, Because I go to the Father?

They said therefore, What is this that he saith, A little while? we cannot tell what he saith.

Now Jesus knew that they were desirous to ask him, and said unto them, Do ye inquire among yourselves of what I said, A little while, and ye shall not see me: and again, a little while, and ye shall see me?

Verily, verily, I say unto you, That ye shall weep and lament, but the world shall rejoice; and ye shall be sorrowful, but your sorrow shall be turned into joy.

A woman when she is in travail hath sorrow, because her hour is come: but as soon as she is delivered of the child, she remembereth no more the anguish, for joy that a man is born into the world.

And ye now therefore have sorrow: but I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you.—John 16:13-22.

They are going on a la Francaise in all points. They have compelled the Moors to clean their streets, and do not despair of making them wash their shirts and faces in time. The Indian War.—The campaign has been ended—as appears from the St. Louis Beacon of the 7th inst., which says:—

"We are happy to announce that Gen. Gaines and Atkinson, with the regular troops, have arrived from the Upper Mississippi, having accomplished with the aid of the Illinois mounted men, commanded by Gen. Duncan and accompanied by Gov. Reynolds, the peaceable removal of the Indians, and dispersed a confederacy which has been forming for two years with incredible secrecy under the famous. INDIAN SUMMER

By Mary Graham Bonner

The Little Black Clock had turned the time far back to a cool autumn day, and the children found themselves around a camp fire, the leaves crackling as they fell from the trees as though to join in the story telling.

Sometimes the old trees creaked, and sometimes a shiver of delight passed over the trees as they whispered about some story they had liked.

An old Indian was telling about the bright colors of the trees and of the great chiefs.

Suddenly he said, "Soon the days will come when the old wise man will smoke his pipe and its smoke will cover the hills and the valleys and leave a warm mist everywhere."

"Oh, when the mighty, cold warriors told him of the stories of their battles with the wind and the ice and the snow all the days became colder, and so interested was the old wise man that he did not even bother to smoke his pipe.

"But then along came the lovely maidens with their soft voices and sunny ways, and their stories were of flowers and sunshine.

"He could not listen to the cold warriors now. He wanted to hear the soft breezes, and he felt so soothed by their stories that he began smoking again.

"And every year the mighty, cold warriors want to start their season, and he listens to them, but then the summer maidens have more to tell him about the brooks and the flowers, and he listens and has one last smoke, and the earth people are warmed."

The story teller puffed his pipe, and the Little Black Clock whispered, "Now you have heard one explanation of Indian summer."

Twenty feet from the top, when he fell to the bottom.

Mme. Worth Chooses

Paris (AP)—Mme. Jean Charles Worth is among blonde Parisians who have sponsored the vogue for brown and beige.

Mme. Worth appeared at the recent races at Auteuil in a beige maitre sports frock designed with insertions of tucks on the blouse and skirt and worn with a three-quarter coat finished with a brown scarf. With the costume she wore a small brown hat and accessories in the same shade.

NEW YORK Day by Day

Paris—(By Mail)—In other days it was a part of a night out, to drift to the Halles Centrales around 4 a. m. for a bowl of steaming onion soup. But in these more sedate years I had to be routed out by the hotel night concierge to join Willis Morgan on his daily visit to the markets.

The great Central markets are reached along upper rue de Rivoli and have been the site of Paris' food supply for centuries. The markets are in huge warehouse-like halls. Its early morning vigour has a shrieking, roaring blatancy that is almost deafening.

Aswirl with blue bloused porters, the "forts des halles" (strong men of the markets), screaming viragos, early morning drunks and swearing truckmen it offers a slice of Parisian life that is the most stimulating in all the town. The tempo is as red-cupped as the blood from the dripping beavers.

Here are the buxom, ruddy and laughing marchandes, the saleswomen, who seem to be in an eternal sally with customers. There is no sale without haggling. After the market closes come the pinch-faced, spindly legged children who search the refuse for food. Also elder chiffoniers with sticks.

They sort through the cast off fruits vegetables and other oddments to refurbish and re-sell for the pot-au-feu of the Paris slums. Next in interest among the local marts, I think, is the Flea Market, so called because of its filth, and held twice weekly near one of the eastern gates.

From a casual glance the Flea Market seems to be a field with piles of abandoned junk and debris. It is mostly that, for one indeed may actually barter there for second hand tooth-brushes. Yet out of its jinkle-jumble treasure hunters have come upon rare and authenticated antiques—the loot of thieves.

Too, there is the Marche Tabac once a week at Place Maubert. Here the tattered demagogues gutter scavengers exchange, buy and sell collections of cigar and cigarette stubs. Ends of American cigarettes, incidentally, bring the very highest prices—a sou for about a hatful.

An exclusive novelty shop in one block long rue, Royale shows what looks to be a huge marquis shaped diamond ring. It is carried in Milady's purse and the diamond is a strip of mirror. Adjusted to a finger the owner may inspect her rouging and powdering.

Champs Elysees has become somewhat the Fleet street of Paris.

Along its expansive and sweeping pathway are such publications as Le Figaro, L'Ami du Peuple, Le Petit Parisien, L'Excelsior, Femina, Chiffons, Je Sais Tout, Comedia, Le Rire, Fantasio, Cinemonde, La Nation, Candide, Rie et Rac and The Boulevardier. Incidentally Paris has a total of 166 daily newspapers—mostly four page sheets and often devoted to the fruits of political blackmail.

Ike Melzer, the Brooklyn Bridge newsie, still rushes up and down the Paris boulevards crying his American papers. For eight years he has been a familiar figure among tourists in front of the cafe de la Paix, Harry's Bar, Weber's and the Ritz bar. His winters are spent around the Frank Gould casino at Nice, where he is also well known. Ike is married to an English girl and is the oldest American newsboy in point of service on the continent. He makes Paris a bit more friendly.

Paris has a drink automat. It is a bistro in rue Fontaine, where one may slip a coin in a slot and lap up a choice of five drinks. It is not popular. Parisians not only want to dawdle over drinks, they want beautiful conversation along with them.

A hatless young blade bowed up to an American flapper along the curb in Place Vendome this morning and cried: "How about knocking over a few lamp posts before lunch?" She hopped in and they roared away.

The current hit tune of the cabarets is "La Petite Tonkinoise," popularized by the sepiu Josephine Baker, of Harlem. I saw Miss Baker, her nails a brilliant red and hair en brosse, dining in one of the most fashionable restaurants in Paris with what looked like a monocled Egyptian.

Son Of Newton Baker Is Wed In Cleveland

Cleveland, July 27 (AP)—Miss Keziah Strong, daughter of Major Charles H. Strong, late Friday became the bride of Newton D. Baker, 3d, son of the secretary of war in the Wilson cabinet.

The couple had but two attendants, the Countess Henri De Boisgeln (Rachel Strong), of Paris, being the matron of honor for her sister, and Mr. Baker serving as his son's best man.

Following the wedding dinner the couple left for Vanderbilt, Michigan, where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their return they will be at home for the summer at Tuckaway, the bride's cottage at Little Mountain.

Boy Scout Leaves Home As Good Turn

New Orleans, July 27 (AP)—Boy Scouts of New Orleans searched the city and adjacent territory Friday for a fellow-scout who tried to do his "good turn" by leaving home after he had heard his parents discussing hard times and the father's lack of steady employment.

The object of their search, Malcolm Stephens, 14, disappeared last Tuesday, leaving a note addressed to "Dear Mother and Dad," which said:

"I hope you will all get along better without me and I hope my expenses saved will give you some new shoes, stockings and clothes."

PURE ICE

Always at Hand

Never Noisy

Perfect Safety

THROUGH years of changes and fads, ice remains the most popular means of refrigeration. Why? Because good pure ice, such as sold by US, is more dependable, more convenient, healthier, cheaper. Because good ice preserves the natural flavor and freshness of food. Because it is silent, and safe.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of our dear husband, father and brother, Jacob P. Kymper, who died one year ago today, July 25, 1930.

We cannot understand why we had to part, From one we loved so dear. But God, who doeth all things well, Some day will make it clear.

Oh, God, what a weight of sorrow Must we the lonely ones bear. That silent room and ah that empty bed, And, oh, God, that lonely vacant chair.

Home is sad, oh, God, how dreary. Lonely, lonesome, every spot. Listening for his voice till weary. Weary for we hear it not.

Dearest husband, how we miss you This world will never know. If tears could only bring you home. You would have been here long ago.

By his wife, children and brother.

Only a small price will give you the valuable protection they deserve while you are away on that trip.

LAVAL GAINS IN PRESTIGE SINCE HOOVER TALKS

French Premier Obtains Majority From Former Foes In Deputies.

By Arno Dorsch-Fleuret

Paris (AP)—Premier Pierre Laval hardly knows where his majority in the chamber of deputies lies since the day of the big wind that blew the Hoover proposition across the Atlantic.

His old majority deserted him on all sides when he went before the chamber to explain his reply to President Hoover.

The deputies were in a mood to increase taxes as a favor to Germany, and that was all they saw in the president's proposal at the time.

While the nightlong debate was on, it was reported several times that the government was lost; and it would have been lost if Laval had been obliged to rely on the majority which placed him in power last January.

Scientists Save Him

The socialists saved him. It was perhaps the only vote the present Laval government will ever receive from that party, but it was given cheerfully, partly in the interest of national solidarity, but also because the radical socialists, with whom the socialists are in bitter rivalry over the 1932 elections, had been led by Edouard Herriot into conspicuous opposition.

The 107 votes the socialists, under the leadership of Leon Blum, cast solidly for Laval early in the morning after an all-night debate gave the government 197 majority. Without them Laval would have failed by a majority of 17.

If Laval had been placed in a minority, the formation of a new government under the circumstances would have undoubtedly taken longer than the American-French negotiations did.

While the negotiations were still on, Laval was obliged to go before the senate, where the radical socialist group abstained. It would not have made any material difference if the senate radicals had voted against the government, but it revealed a cohesion among the radicals which will make a big difference in the future. If they had had the same cohesion in the past Laval could not have been maintained in power as long as he has.

Even before the negotiations over the Hoover proposition came to a happy issue, Laval was being constantly harassed by his parliament and there was constant danger of his being overthrown on some other issue. He removed that danger, craftily, by giving out the impression that Washington and Paris were in accord and closing the session one night. As a matter of fact he had three tough days of negotiations left before him.

The Hoover proposition gave Laval his first opportunity to show his capacity. He proved tireless and persistent. His majority was shaken but he was not.

He may not retain power until the 1932 elections, but he has gained a reputation that will likely make him premier again more than once.

Associated Gas and Electric System

Founded In 1852

NOW
223,348 Investors

THAT the Associated System is widely known, and the investment value of its securities widely recognized, is shown by the wide distribution of security holders. There are Associated investors in each of the 48 states, in all the United States possessions, and in 26 other countries. The tabulation below shows the growth since 1924.

Year	Registered Security Holders	Year	Registered Security Holders
1924	6,000	1928	66,263
1925	38,000	1929	186,332
1926	41,000	1930	220,484
1927	50,537	1931 - March	223,348

Foresight led to Associated investment in 1924. Hindsight as well as foresight point to the attractiveness of an Associated investment in 1931. From 1920 to 1930 Associated System gross revenue and customers increased at an average annual rate of about 10%. While growth during 1930 was at a retarded rate, it did not cease. Growth coming during this year of generally slack business activity, indicates the stability of the Associated System.

Last year new investors were added at the rate of 2,300 a month—

an expression of confidence in Associated management. These investors recognized the outstanding stability of the business behind Associated securities. They also wished to avail themselves of the liberal yields resulting from generally depressed prices of high-grade securities. There are Associated investors in each of the 48 States, all the United States possessions, and 26 foreign countries. Wide distribution adds to stability and marketability.

Science To Study
Ancient Carvings
In Dakota's Hills

Hot Springs, S. D. (AP)—Rugged canyons of South Dakota's Black Hills will be a laboratory this summer in which unexplained rock carvings will be studied by nationally known scientists.

Scattered along rocky gulches of the southern Black Hills in more than a score of places are strange designs, apparently records of a primitive people.

One theory holds that the markings may represent records of Coronado, early Spanish explorers. Another suggests that the Pueblo Indians may have visited the Black Hills long before white men.

Among scientists who may study the hieroglyphics are Warren K. Moorehead, University of Illinois; Alonzo W. Pon, archeologist of Beloit college; Fay Cooper-Cole, head of the archeological division of the University of Chicago; and M. W. Stirling, chief of the bureau of American ethnology, Smithsonian Institution.

SOVIET IDEALS
GROW IN CHINANanking Government Sees
Menace In Influence Of Interior Reds.

By Morris J. Harris

Nanking (AP)—Despite government efforts to suppress the red menace in China, the soviet ideas of government have obtained a strong grip on many of the richest districts of several western and southern provinces.

An idea of how serious this menace has become is found in a report by General Ho Ying-Ching, minister of war, who is in charge of anti-communist activities. This has been supplemented by an appeal from Dr. Ida Kahn, a physician who is one of China's outstanding women.

Gravest Problem

The two together shed light upon a recent government statement that communism constitutes the gravest problem of the Nanking regime. They explain, too, why Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the executive branch of the government, has taken the field in person, despite the organization of a rival regime at Canton.

General Ho's report is based upon his experiences in campaigns against the reds. While he reviews the work of the government troops, his chief observations deal with destruction of life and property.

The provinces which have suffered the most are Kiangsi, Hunan and Hupeh. In Kiangsi alone, says General Ho, 186,000 persons have been massacred by communists, while more than 2,000,000 have been driven from their homes.

More than 100,000 houses have been razed, millions of dollars' worth of food destroyed and the countryside has been left destitute. Eleven of the 81 counties in Kiangsi have fallen completely into the hands of the reds and in these places all factories, mercantile establishments and everything else related to capital have been wiped out.

Losses in Hunan are described as equaling the Kiangsi destruction, while Hupeh is not far behind the other two.

Creth Hines, former national intercollegiate javelin champion and Olympic prospect, is now in the fried pie business.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting
Itching, bleeding, protruding piles are caused by bad circulation of the blood in the affected parts. The parts become weak, flabby, almost dead. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause—that's why salves, suppositories and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's prescription, HEM-ROID, succeeds because it removes congestion, restores circulation, heals and strengthens the diseased parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of quickly ending even piles of long standing, that Peoples Drug Store says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your pile agony or money back.

Sidelights
of New York

By William Gaines

New York—Those who do not know her do not suspect, when they see her dancing in the chorus line, that the attractive Viola Newton is both deaf and dumb.

Born in Santa Ana, California, she suffered a serious attack of scarlet fever in her infancy. After that she never spoke or heard.

In childhood, though, she developed a fondness for dancing. By placing her hands flat against the back of the piano, she could feel the rhythmic beats of music. Gradually she learned to time her steps according to her sense for rhythm.

Harry Newton, her father, was a close friend of a producer of stage shows for movie houses. He obtained a place for her in a touring unit. Now she can go through her routine without any evidence of her affliction being perceptible to the audience.

Of his book, "The Communist Murder," he says, "People seem to be buying the thing." The first printing sold out in nine days.

"It only scratches the surface of my contempt for Broadway, after four years of hell and heartbreak there," Burt reiterates. "I've got another Broadway book in my system, and for that there'll be no quarter asked or given."
